

CAMPBELL KEEN TO BETTER HIS SPEED RECORD

Confident "Blue Bird" Can Reach 260 Miles Per Hour

UNDECIDED TO TRY IT

"I Have A Great Car," Says
Englishman, in Recounting the Feat

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 6.— Having established a new world's automobile speed record of 245.73 miles per hour, better than four miles
a minute, Captain Malcolm Campbell, of England, the "king of speed," today
has not definitely made up his mind whether to attempt to shatter that mark, or not. He declared he is confident he could drive his 1,450 horsepower Bluebird at a speed in excess of 260 miles an hour.

"Personally, I am keen to beat my new record of 245 miles an hour but there are a number of factors to be considered," said Captain Campbell,
"the beach may break up and become bad for fast driving. Then, too, there is the question of expense. Also, my friends are advising me that I have done well enough. I shall think it over and decide what to do some time today."

In the presence of 15,000 persons, who lined the ocean speedway course,
he flashed twice over the measured mile at an average speed of 245.73 miles per hour. This exceeded by 14.36 miles an hour the previous record of 231.36 miles an hour established here in 1929 by the late Sir Henry Segrave, also of England.
Campbell's first run, made from north to south, was clocked in 14.50 seconds
over the measured mile for a speed of 246.575 miles an hour. His second run, in a northerly direction, was accomplished in 14.71 seconds for a speed of 244.897 miles an hour. His two way time was 14.65 seconds and his average speed for the two miles 245.733 miles an hour.

"But shucks," Captain Campbell
told International News Service today,
"this car of mine can do better than 245 an hour. Personally I'd like to prove that I can do 260 officially. I've done it already unofficially earlier this week. I have a great car."

Collier's New Garage Will Open Tomorrow

Tomorrow the new garage and service station of Thomas Collier, local Ford dealer, Market street and the Highway, will open for the inspection and use of the public.
The public is cordially invited to visit the show room and view the exhibits.

This garage, which is one of the largest and most modern as well as the best equipped in Bristol, is fitted to cater to the wants of every Ford owner. It is a fire-proof brick and steel building with a display room of 65 by 38 and a work room 90 by 50 feet.
The display room is on the north end with exceptionally large plate glass windows along the Highway and north ends. It is brilliantly lighted and is a very attractive room where the numerous models of Ford cars can be shown to advantage.

Back of the display room is a large service station, an entire section of which is equipped with the latest labor saving devices for the servicing of Ford cars and in addition to this there is a room devoted to the keeping of Ford parts. These parts are arranged in steel cabinets and bins, so as to be easily found.

The entire building is heated by an oil burner and the temperature is kept the same day and night.
Mr. Collier came to Bristol eight years ago and has built up a large business. Yesterday afternoon the members of the Rotary Club held their weekly meeting in the Collier display room which for the time being was turned into a play room.

In addressing the Rotarians, who numbered close to 50, Mr. Collier expressed his appreciation for the support given him in Bristol and said that while there were a number of people who were always decrying Bristol, he was not of that type. "Bristol and Bristol folks have done much for me," he said. "I think it is the finest place on earth and will always boost Bristol."

Elsewhere in today's Courier, pages 6 and 7, will be found the announcements of the contractors who participated in the building of the Collier garage and which tell the part the various local contractors played in the erection of this modern service station.

An unsightly corner has been completely transformed with the completion of the Collier garage and when the improvements have been completed, the Ford Agency in Bristol will be numbered among the most attractive and progressive in this section.

UNDER OPERATION

An operation was performed upon Emanuel Decker, of Trenton, N. J., at the Harriman Hospital, yesterday morning.

Performance To Be Given For Unemployed People

The Live Wires of Neshaminy Council of Red Ladies will give a ladies'

Houser. The interlocutor is Averti Tochterman.

"The Family Album" is sure to please all who attend. The women who will present this are: Gertrude Youmans, Margaret Mahlin, Dorothea
Spencer, Mary Youmans, Ruth Gan-
ther, Henrietta Kogel, Viola Boyer, Averti Tochterman, Margaret Kemp,
Ada Foerst, Christine Williams.

STATE TROOPERS RAID THREE HOTELS IN BUCKS

Located in Sellersville, Perkasie and Richland
Township

I RECENTLY PADLOCKED

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 6.—(INS)—
Three State troopers last night raided three well known Bucks County Hotels, seizing a quantity of beer and wine and arresting the proprietors.

The places raided were: The Washington House, at Sellersville, where the proprietor, Frederick Fargo, 47,
was arrested and three half barrels of beer were reported seized. Fargo was arraigned before Squire Mahlon Keller at Perkasie and released for a further hearing under $800 bail.

The American House, Perkasie, also was raided and Stanley Szelowitz,
the proprietor, was taken into custody
when he returned home from a trip to Philadelphia. He will be given a hearing today. A half barrel of deer on draught alleged to have been under the supervision of his wife, Mary, was seized.

The California Hotel, in Richland
Township, was the third place raided.
There the proprietress, Mrs. Hilda Kurtz, was taken into custody when 10 gallons of wine and a half barrel of alleged high powered beer was found.
She was given a hearing before Magistrate W. T. Hobensack at Doylestown and released under $800 bail.

Mrs. Kurtz is only 21 years of age.
The bar at the American Hotel was recently padlocked and when the State Troopers made their visit last night
they found a newly-installed bar, set up in another room.

Young Bristol Woman Among Contest Winners

Miss Harriet Sartain, Dean of the Philadelphia School of Design for Women, Broad and Master streets, Philadelphia, has announced that among the winners of the poster competition conducted in conjunction with the annual costume ball of that school
is Miss Frances Blanch, of Bristol, who won second prize.

Students of the school have been engaged for many weeks in this competition and to place among the winners
is one of the high honors of the school annually. First honors this year went to Miss Grace Jackson, of 4531 Mc-Kinley street, Philadelphia, but the competition was very keen between the first two winners.

The ball this year to be known as the "Mid-Victorian Ball," is to be given on the night of February 13, under the auspices of the Alumnae Association of the school, which is the oldest school of design in America. Students of the school have planned the affair and are designing the costumes, and making the scenery as part of their school work. Five hundred persons attend the event which is one of the most elaborate of the winter season in Philadelphia.

The event will transport the whole school back to the days when the institution started and will be in detail the reaction of the private opening of the Royal Academy in Trafalgar Square, London. The entire school building for the occasion will be turned over into a Victorian Paradise, taking the patrons back to the days of the hoop skirts and curls and ladies bedecked in garlands of flowers.

In addition to Miss Blanch's winning of second honors, honorable mention in the poster contest went to Elizabeth Drum, Sylvia Shusterman, Margaret Murray, Laura Greenwood, of Philadelphia, and Adelaide Arntsen, Glenside, Pa.

Miss Blanch, of Bristol, will attend
the ball on the night of February 13
in Mid-Victorian costume.

Prisoner Attempts To Break Langhorne Jail

George White, 138 N. 22nd street, West New York, N. J., attempted to break from the Langhorne Jail last night, after being arrested by the State Police from the Langhorne barracks.

White is charged with the larceny of an automobile from New Jersey and he was arrested by the State Troopers on the Lincoln Highway. He was placed in the Langhorne jail and forced a lock on the door of the jail
in an attempt to gain his freedom.

The State Police then brought the prisoner to Bristol and placed him in the municipal jail here for the night.

That "Jazz" Orchestra By "The Stroller"

A "jazz" orchestra was playing on the radio and I tried to forget myself in a magazine story, for I believe as Paul Whiteman, the father of jazz, "that jazz music is at its best when it is quietest," only I would like to substitute silent for quietest. Suddenly the music changed and an old time melody floated out from the radio.
I laid down the magazine and listened, and by the time the song ended my mind was filled with precious memories of old time melodies. I jotted down on a sheet of paper the titles of as many as I could remember, and then started to express my thoughts in rhyme, having no definite idea as to where they would lead, and this is the result:

"MEMORIES OF OLD TIME MELODIES"

"Somewhere in Old Wyoming," the strains came sweet and low,
From out that marvelous mystic thing they call the radio;
Its bright and catchy harmony brought back old memories,
And I sang along the old songs which never fail to please.

"Don't Leave Your Mother, Tom," I sang the old refrain,
As memories came rushing back to overtake my brain;
"My Old New Hampshire Home," "Nancy Lee," and "Tim Finigan's Wake,"

From out the shady past their words the mystic silence break.

"O'Brien in His High Water Pants," and "Casey At The Bat," "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie," "Where Did You Get That Hat?"

These are some of the old songs, that always will remain,
To keep a-fresh those by-gone days, and woo me back again.

"A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother," "Over the Garden Wall,"
And "Little Annie Rooney," were the sweetest of them all;
"Love Me and the World Is Mine" was popular in its day,
But the "Whistling Coon," has long been laid away.

We had some "hot" ones then as now, like "The Hat Me Father Wore,"

While "Down Went McGinty," would make the people scream
and roar;
"Dad's Dinner Pail" was catchy too, and "The Day I Played Baseball"

Would make a hit whenever sung, and was enjoyed by all.

The years passed on and new songs came, to take the place of old,
In prettier tunes and nicer words, the sentiments were told;
"Till Take You Home Again, Kathleen," "Down By the Old Mill Stream,"

These new songs soon displayed the old, much better did they seem.

There came a time when National songs, were popular in a way,
"Hats Off When the Flag Goes By," "My Dream of the U. S. A."
These songs were snappy, catchy too, and stood for loyalty, While one they called "The Grand Old Bell" filled me with ecstasy.

I sat one night and listened in, the "Jazz" was playing strong,
But suddenly there came a pause, as if the thing went wrong;
The spirit words from out the past in flimsy garments clad,
Sank: "I Want A Girl, Just Like the Girl, Who Married Dear Old Dad."

It was cheerful and refreshing, to hear the theme again,
To have enjoyed a song as much, I cannot tell you when;
The voice again came on the air, with melody it rang,
"After the Ball Is Over," was the old song that it sang.

Perhaps old age is creeping on, and its mandates I must serve,
But just the same these jazz tune tunes are getting on my nerve;
So I treasure most the old songs, with their tender melodies,
For to me they're filled just full, of loving memories.

Kiwanians of Sellersville Send Out Questionnaire To Their Members

OTHER COUNTY NEWS

Leading citizens of Sellersville,
local Kiwanians, now being interrogated, per questionnaire, upon three primary objectives to be worked for unceasingly throughout 1931 by Borough Council, Board of Trade and virtually all other organizations, are expected to be unanimous upon one point
it was said today.

More than concentrated action for factories or other wholly commercial projects, Sellersville is expected to declare for unanimous action to further the objects of the Tri-State Planning Federation, zoning being reckoned as of primary importance in Sellersville's case.

Zoning today was interpreted to mean exclusion of factories and other conditions detrimental to purely residential development in the annexed section of the town, extending to the new consolidated high school and the Perkasie boundary upon the east, together with the entire frontage of the projected new route for the Bethlehem Pike throughout the town. Council will be urged, accordingly to specify a restricted area 250 feet in depth upon both sides of the new highway as soon as the route is definitely approved, prohibiting erection therein of any structures other than for residential purposes.

Another project which will have strong support contemplates the "parking," with county aid, of the banks of the Northeast Branch of Perkasie Creek from Perkasie line to the lower limit of Sellersville, with the expectation Perkasie will take similar action. This matter is before Bucks county commissioners.

Dr. J. H. Waldeich, pastor of St.
Michael's Lutheran Church; Postmaster E. D. Smith and Samuel L. Alt-house, chairman, constitute the questionnaire committee. This is its statement:

"Considering the town, its present and future needs and your own wishes in the matter, what should the three main objectives of Kiwanis be in 1931?
"Do we want more factories or more homes? More utility or more beauty?
Better future citizens or worse? We can be some kind of a real influence in 1931 or we can be a minus quantity. Think it over and then use the return card at once."

Township School Board To Prosecute Delinquents

At the February business meeting of the Bristol Township school board, held in the Maple Shade School last evening, a decision was reached to prosecute all delinquent tax-payers,
and where property is owned the taxes
will be entered against the property,
at the county seat.

Strenuous efforts are to be made
now in order to collect the back taxes,
as the members of the school board
are determined in this effort.

There was but one absentee at the meeting of last night, and much business was transacted. The board received the state appropriation for the first half of the 1930-1931 term.

Various improvements for the school system are being planned.

BRISTOL YOUTH CAPTURES COOPER'S HAWK IN TRAP

Lawrence Moore Gets Unusual Bird Which Has Been Killing Pheasants

DESCRIPTION IS GIVEN

Several days ago Lawrence Moore,
of Bath street, while trapping in Rodgers Woods, near here, noticed the remains of five or six ringneck pheasants, which apparently had been killed by some animal or bird of prey. Moore, who was anxious to find out what was doing the damage to these game birds which are prized highly by the sportsmen of this section, gathered the carcasses of some of the pheasants and placed them about several traps one evening. He went out into the woods early the next morning and found a Cooper's Hawk in one of the traps.
The Cooper's Hawk is probably the most destructive hawk in this section and is responsible for the killing of many game birds and much poultry.
Although smaller than a pheasant, it has no trouble in killing these birds and is capable of carrying off a good-sized chicken.

According to Ralph Ratcliffe, secretary of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association, there are three very destructive hawks in Pennsylvania, namely, the Sharp-Shinned Hawk, the Cooper's Hawk and the Goshawk.

The Sharp-Shinned Hawk takes a heavy toll of small birds, while the Cooper's Hawk and the Goshawk carry away chickens, pheasants, grouse and cottontail rabbits. The Goshawk, fortunately, is with us only in the winter and usually frequents the mountainous sections of the State. It is a heavy killer of grouse and the State Game Commission pays a bounty of $5 for each one killed. All three of the above mentioned hawks are built about the same proportions and all have long tails.

The adult Goshawk is 22 to 25 inches long, has a wing spread of 40 to 47 inches, is bluish-slate color above; below it is whitish, streaked with numerous bars of slaty color and with very fine black shaft lines in evidence.

The top and back of the head is black, the white undersurface of the feathers much exposed on back of head; a broad white stripe extends over the eye to the back of the head;
the tail is barred by four or five broad faintly defined bands of blackish and is tipped with whitish.

President of Auxiliary Surprises the Members

The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of No. 1 Fire Co., who attended the meeting last night were given a pleasant surprise by their president, Mrs. H. C. Streeter.

When the group entered the meeting room they found a table decorated and set for a Valentine party. There was a large red heart in the center of the table with a red ribbon running to each plate; also a favor at each place, containing red and conversation hearts. Menu consisted of: Fruit salad, heart shaped cakes, salted peanuts, angel cake and coffee.

TRAVEL BY AIRPLANE ON INCREASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—More than 2-500,000 persons flew in airplanes operated by aerial service operators engaged in charter or short "hop" business during 1930, it was revealed today in a report compiled by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, Inc., for publication in "The Aircraft Year Book for 1931," which will come from the press this month.

The report, based on statistics submitted by several score typical base operators and computed to include the 600 aerial service operators listed in the Department of Commerce directory, shows that such concerns are based at 854 airports, nearly half of which are equipped for night flying, widely scattered throughout the United States.

The survey shows that a major share of the airplanes in service are in the hands of aerial service operators.
The statistical estimates revealed that 5,324 airplanes were being employed in this field, 4,908 of which were single-engined land planes, ten twin-en-

WILDCATS SCORE AGAIN FOR THE FOURTH TIME

Defeat Rangers by The One-Sided Score of 33 to 17

RAMBLERS FORFEIT

By T. M. Juno

The Wildcats won their fourth victory of the second half of the A. O. H.
League last night when they downed the Rangers, 33-17. In the other game scheduled for the evening, the Ramblers forfeited to the Tigers.

The Wildcats came across little trouble in chalking up their victory last night. They seemed to score at will and their lead was never in danger.

Possessing the old grit of fighting at all times, the Rangers made a few inspired rallies which came to no avail.

For their night's work, the Wildcats
hit the net for sixteen double-deckers and a foul. E. Dugan was leader with the two-pointers with five. McClafferty was close behind with four field and a free shot.

The points were well divided for the losers.

A TIME FOR COURAGE

It is good to see ourselves as others see us. It will be beneficial to see ourselves as H. N. Casson pictures us today in the British Efficiency Magazine:

"You are depressed. You think you are crippled. You are afraid of the future. You are full of fears."

"You have half the gold of the world and half of the machinery and most of the automobiles and all the skyscrapers."

"You have the greatest home market in the world and the largest corporations that the world has ever seen."

"You are ruled more by ideas and less by tradition than any other people in the world. You have usually done what you thought you could do."

"How can it be possible that a progressive nation of 120,000,000 people can be wrecked by the speculations of a little handful of fools in Wall Street?"

After correcting the last statement to make it encompass more than a "little handful of fools" and to admit of other causes than "Black October" for the present state of the nation, the American people shamefacedly plead guilty to this indictment. We know it is true but cannot tell why it is true, unless we have had our own way so long and have known so few real reverses that we are not equal to the test of adversity.

This is a time that calls for courage. The way to create a fortune is to buy from pessimists, to plunge on a buyers' market when a dollar sells for 30 cents.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS

Repeated and serious inroads have been made in recent years upon the freedom of the press as guaranteed under the constitution. Abridgement of editorial criticism and censorship of news has been approached in more than one instance. The modern tendency to glorify realism may be in part responsible. A press that refuses to censor itself within reasonable limits runs the danger of having the brake applied from the outside. There have, however, been many court decisions which have appeared to be in contravention with the spirit and the letter of the rule laid down by the nation's founders.

Some judicial rulings have been entirely inexplicable, as, for example, the case in which the presiding judge announced prior to the trial that he would hold in contempt any newspaper publishing the testimony in a public trial. Jurists have even attempted to punish newspapers for criticizing the management of public utilities by receivers appointed by the court.

But just when the public was becoming alarmed and wondering where this new tyranny would end, the pendulum began its inevitable backward swing. Legislatures seem to be less free with their "muzzle" laws and at least one courageous and far-seeing governor has recommended the repeal of a statute that does violence to the ideal of a free press.

The easier a girl is to look upon the harder a man looks.

A scientist says giants never existed. He never sat under the icy glare of a towering traffic officer.

The sum of money derived from the Lindbergh Social sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association on Wednesday evening has been swelled, sale of refreshments and additional donations bringing the total to $40. The amount is to be placed in the treasury of the Welfare Association.

A dental nurse, working in conjunction with the American Red Cross, has been stationed at the Hulmeville school for a few days, where the teeth of all the pupils, first to eighth grades, are being examined. The teeth of each child are cleaned and where additional work is necessary it is prescribed. The work is free to the school children, and the dental chair and all other equipment is brought by the nurse, who works in five counties in eastern Pennsylvania. Several of the children have the suggested dental work done by their own dentists following examination at the school.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XLIII.

KITTY drew away from his clumsy reaching arm. Her thin little face was drawn with hate.

"Yes, that's just like you, blaming it on fate when it's your own fault! It isn't for myself," she managed to articulate between sobs. "I don't care for myself. It's the girls I'm thinking of. My life is ruined. But I won't stand back and see my girls—"

He didn't understand. He just looked at her blankly.

"It's your mother's fault!" she shrieked, pointing a shaking finger at him. "Oh, don't look at me like that! I know! It isn't enough for her to make us ridiculous with the neighbors... she has, she has! Don't you interrupt me! But you see what she's done to Nancy, and now Lou... Lou!"

"I guess Louise is thinking for herself, Kitty." In spite of himself he sighed again, heavily.

"That's all YOU know. It's that woman. SHE put her up to it—it's HER doing... no girl of mine—"

"Now, Kitty, you'll have one of your headaches."

"Don't Kitty me! Your mother will have to go, that's all. I won't have her in my house another day. This settles it!"

Self-Pity.

"Kitty—please, Kitty—"

"I'm sure I've tried to do my best. I DID advise my girls. Now they've turned against me. You heard Nancy insult Mr. Lachman! You saw how much Louise cared for my feelings! And now you—"

"You... after all I gave up for you... oh, to think that after all these years—"

"Kitty, please—"

"All right, I'll go, then. I'll go to Ellie; she'll take me in. I'll be turned out of my own home... oh, I can't bear it. How can I ever—"

"But, Kitty, darling—"

"The tears in mama's eyes dried. She said in quite her ordinary voice, 'Make up your mind, I'm waiting! Are you going to get rid of her, or aren't you?'"

She thought she had won, for Peter Hollenbeck, seeming to grow smaller and smaller, slumped in his chair until his head fell forward on his chest.

"I'm waiting for my answer!"

It was not like Peter to torture her this way! She made a little impatient movement toward him, and saw his face, livid and distorted.

"Peter! You're sick!"

But only his broken, stentorian breathing answered her. Peter Hollenbeck had had a stroke.

"I'm going to get all the fun I can out of my life," said Nancy.

happy relations of so many years, nevertheless you must agree with me that a younger man rehearsing the speech he was rehearsing was never finished. Mr. Stafford, the cashier, brought him the news. Mr. Hollenbeck was sick. A stroke, the doctor said.

Hum... Oliver Lachman was stumped. You can't fire a man while he's sick. "Hum," Mr. Lachman cleared his throat again.

"That's all news?"

The bank employees clubbed together and sent a basket of Spring flowers. Mr. Lachman, annoyed, sent a larger basket. What else could he do?

Grandma Hollenbeck climbed stairs, made soup, nursed the invalid. The girls, crushed and silent at first, began to think once more of their own affairs. Nancy resumed her mysterious trips down town, prinking for hours before she left, returning tired, defiant, more impatient than ever with mama's questioning, her warnings and advice.

Changed Times.

"I don't care what the circumstances are, Nancy. A young man should ALWAYS call for a young lady at her home. I don't know what the matter with young men these days. When I was a girl—"

"Mama, STOP! I don't care what you did when you were a girl. I'm going to get all the fun I can out of my life. I don't get much—"

Mama always cried when Nancy spoke so bitterly. I did my best, she thought disconsolately. It isn't my fault that Peter never got ahead. No girls were ever better brought up than mine... oh, dear, why won't they listen to me?

They wouldn't listen. Nobody would listen. Not even papa. He would close his eyes and pretend to be asleep... maybe he was, she couldn't be sure. But when his mother or the girls wanted to see him he was always awake!

March gave way to April. April with its gift of Summer sunshine, roses, fledgling sparrows in the magnolia tree under the bedroom window. And, as if he were feeling the intoxication of Spring, the surge of new life all around

The Blow.

And then the blow came. They were sitting around the fireplace after dinner. He was in the wheel chair he had learned to move so easily. Kitty dozed over her embroidery. His mother was mending stockings. Nancy—just a shadow of the gold and rose Nancy of last Spring—sat listlessly, lovely hands in her lap, doing nothing.

Louise's chair was close to his. He was explaining the heavyweight championship fight he saw at Selby when Jack Dempsey... Jack Dempsey...

"Just a minute, papa. I think that's for me. I'm expecting a phone call!" Louise interrupted, and went out into the hall.

He waited, impatient, for her to return.

At last she came back, and he went on. "Well, oh, nobody knew for sure whether the fight was going to come off or not, but I figured I'd be there just in case. And so I was one of the comparatively few who saw one of the greatest championship bouts in history. Well, sir, when Jack sat down at the end of the second round..."

He talked on and on, watching Lou's flushed, excited face, adding a few blood-thirsty details to make the story better. Then he waited for her comment.

For a long moment she did not answer. Then, addressing no one in particular, her eyes on the tips of her shiny brown pumps, she said:

"I'm going to be married Thursday."

KOPPERS COKE

For Heating Your Home

- 1. More Heat—
No matter how cold the weather, Koppers Coke will give you heat and plenty of it.
- 2. Quicker Heat—
A touch of the damper starts it. No waiting. No coaxing. Heat comes fast.
- 3. Steadier Heat—
It's nice, steady heat, too. Heat that keeps every nook and corner warm as toast all day.
- 4. Costs Less To Buy—
Even though it gives better results, Koppers Coke costs you much less than the solid fuels you burned before.
- 5. Costs Less To Burn—
It's more economical to burn, too. Altogether you will save at least two dollars out of every ten you used to spend.
- 6. Fewer Ashes—
You'll be surprised how little waste this improved fuel gives. A little pail holds all the ashes the average family gets in a week.
- 7. Less Shoveling—
Because it gives less waste, Koppers Coke eliminates most of the shaking, shoveling and carrying out of ashes. Furnace tending is made simple and easy.
- 8. Saves Your Furnace—
Fuels that give a lot of ash fill up the ash pit and shut out the air. Thus grates are damaged. Koppers Coke has so little ash that this danger is practically eliminated. It's so easy to keep the ash pit clean. Use Coke and your furnace will give you better results than ever before.
- 9. More Carbon—
It's the carbon in fuel that gives heat. And Koppers Coke is almost all carbon. That's why you get more heat for your money.
- 10. Less Fuel—
Because it gives so much better heat, you'll burn less of Koppers Coke. Thus you save money in two ways—less fuel at less cost.
- 11. Easy to Handle—
Koppers Coke is so much lighter—so much easier to handle. A child can take care of it.
- 12. No Soot—
No smoke or soot. Koppers Coke is a clean-burning fuel.

WIFE OF SLAYER WILL STAND BY HER "HUBBY"

Woman in Tears as She Tells of Happy Life With Williams

WED SECRETLY A YEAR

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Although distressed at the imminence of his trial and apprehensive about its outcome, Mrs. Harold E. Williams, 22, wife of the self-confessed slayer of William F. Prophet, reiterated yesterday her determination to stick by her husband.

Blonde and blue-eyed, the slender girl sat yesterday in the office of Jay C. Bossard, counsel for her husband and his sister, Mrs. Clara Grace Prophet, and said over and over again, "I know it isn't true. But I'd stand by him anyhow."

She would follow him to jail and work, hidden in some little town nearby, just so she could see him and wait. She couldn't live without him.

"We were so happy," she said, her voice choking and her eyes brimming with tears. "We met six years ago at a friend's house. And a year later we married, but we kept it secret a year."

"Then we told our parents, and we moved to my mother-in-law's home. Mrs. Stimmington was so kind to us. We were so happy. If poor Grace had been even one-tenth as happy—but she wasn't."

"Finally we moved to the little farm in Warrington, and it was glorious, with our own little home and the fields and the dogs."

Everything reminds her of her husband.

Just the other night over the radio "Hallelujah" was played by an orchestra, and a picture of her husband, with his lips pursed, his head to one side, singing the song, flashed through her mind, and she burst into tears.

Now she is working under an assumed name as housekeeper. She refused to divulge just where.

The trial which opens on Tuesday will find Mrs. Prophet, the widow, and her brother, Williams, who fired the shot, jointly answering for the crime.

Their attorney, C. Bossard, announced he is so near a breakdown from overwork that Samuel J. Moyerman has been retained to help him in the trial.

"I wish I were as calm as Mrs. Prophet and Williams," said he yesterday, "but I must confess I'm not. I've worked myself to the exhaustion point."

Mrs. Prophet and Williams were given their final mental examination yesterday. Dr. Alfred Gordon, the alienist retained by the defense, watched them go through their routine prison duties at Moyamensing all day.

Travel By Airplane Is On the Increase and miscellaneous operations, 100,800 hours. The number of passengers carried by aerial service operators totaled 2,621,769.

"One of the most interesting results of the survey was that while the number of passengers carried and number of miles flown in 1929 were only slightly under 1928, the number of pilots and other personnel employed decreased considerably as the operators tightened up the efficiency of their organizations. The number of pilots employed, for instance, was reduced from 3,558 in 1929 to 2,114 in 1930. The number of hours flown by each pilot, however, was almost doubled; 534 hours in 1929 as compared with 293 hours in 1930. The total number of employees, all classes, was 12,283 in 1929 as compared with 29,944 in 1930.

"Consistent with this saving, the majority of operators lowered their rates during 1930. The average charter rate per mile for single-engine land planes in 1930 was 39 cents as compared with 45 cents in 1929. The rate per mile for tri-motored land planes was $1.22 in 1930 as compared with $1.35 in 1929. The report shows that rates in other classes were similarly reduced.

Under the chapter title, "Airplanes: Jacks of All Trades," The Aircraft Year Book for 1931 will go into further detail concerning the problems and progress made in the aerial service field during 1930. It points out that no nation in the world has more than a fraction of the volume of aerial service flying done in the United States.

The chapter is one of nineteen in the new book, the thirteenth successive edition to be compiled, written and edited by Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. It is being published for the Chamber by the D. Van Nostrand Company of New York and will come from the press this month. The report on aerial service operations is one of nearly two score exhaustive surveys made by the Chamber for the new book.

Gives Farewell Party In Honor of Joseph Waugh

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weik, of Otter street, were hosts at a farewell party, on Saturday evening, at their home in honor of Joseph Waugh, of 523 Maple street, who has been transferred from Bristol to Coatesville, by the National Discuit Company, by whom he is employed.

The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Waugh, Mr. and Mrs. John Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. John Ennis, Jr., the Misses Eleanor and Catharine Weik, Miss Charlotte Flannagan, Miss Nancy Ennis, William Ennis, Joseph McGlynn, Mr. and Mrs. John Flannagan, Miss Rose Flannagan, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter McCullion, of Bristol; Joseph Jennings, of Trenton, N. J., and Miss Mary Gross, Miss Florence Donohue and Roger and Thomas Gillespie, of Philadelphia.

The evening was pleasantly spent in the enjoyment of dancing, music and games.

WEST BRISTOL

One day last week Mr. and Mrs. Samuel McLaughlin and daughters Clara and Betty, of Philadelphia, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliver Bowers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Supper and daughters Florence and Lillian motored to Freehold recently and paid a visit to the Supper's sons at the Freehold Military School.

People of this section are again reminded of the apron social on February 14th. Several have already placed the necessary sum in the small aprons that were distributed, and a gala crowd is expected at the affair in the Newport Road Community Chapel.

Members of the Boys' Club of the chapel, directed by Charles Carter, will give a George Washington party on February 21st, in the basement of the chapel. A silver offering will be received.

Mrs. A. W. Mertz was a Philadelphia visitor yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Murphy, of Philadelphia, paid a visit to the Lange family over the week-end. Mr. and Mrs. William Lange, also of Philadelphia, visited the Lange family on Sunday.

Doris Robinson, of Steele avenue, is ill at her home.

The bingo party at the chapel last Saturday evening was pronounced a success. The committee in charge greatly appreciates the assistance given, both by those attending, and others who gave prizes.

Relatives in Philadelphia were visited on Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. J. Oliver Bowers and son Elmer.

An electric bell has been installed at the Maple Shade school house.

LOCAL NEWS

Mrs. William Gallagher and son, Billy, of 738 Beaver street, were Monday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Jones, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gannett, of

NAMES DELEGATES

HARRISBURG, Feb. 6.—Governor Gifford Pinchot has designated three delegates to represent Pennsylvania at the thirty-fifth annual meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science to be held in Philadelphia, April 17 and 18. They are Dr. Clyde L. King, secretary of revenue; Dr. Frank Parker, Philadelphia, and Richard H. Lansburgh, Detroit.

past month, it was reported at the monthly meeting. Four letters from residents of this community were read by the secretary, praising the company for the efficient service rendered in each case. There were seven fires during the month, according to Fire Chief Fretz's report.

Called on to give his classification talk at the dinner meeting of the Rotary Club, because it was deemed appropriate at this time when there is an epidemic of influenza, Dr. H. R. Hicks discussed a phase of preventive medicine dealing with staying off old age.

Degeneration incident to old age, Dr. Hicks said, could be delayed if periodic physical examinations were made and habits of living were regulated to protect and conserve natural physical conditions.

Physicians, he said, naturally are hesitant about urging examinations once or, better, twice a year, because they raise suspicion concerning their motives. Yet they are important, as health and mortality statistics show; he said, because of the increasing stress and strain of modern living.

The Sharp-Shinned and Cooper's Hawks are dark bluish-slate above, whitish below, traversed with numerous broad bars of reddish rufous; black shaft lines are also in evidence. If the feathers of the head are erected they show snowy-white. The tail is barred by four bands of brownish black, the last one broader than the others and the first concealed by other feathers. The five outer wing feathers are notched on the inner webs. These two birds are practically the same with the exception of size, the Sharp-Shinned Hawk being 11 to 14 inches long and having a wing spread of from 23 to 27 inches and the Cooper's Hawk being 18 to 20 inches long and having a wing spread of 30 to 36 inches.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission is making a detailed study of hawks and it will be appreciated if any one killing a hawk will bring it to the secretary of the Game Association.

who will get desired information and forward it to the Game Commission.

manner in which the new honor point system of Bristol High School is being worked out, presented the felt emblems of the system to the following: Joseph Alra, Nelson Green, Doris Horne, Marion Monaco, Frances Flagg, Dorothy Santo, Doris Johns and Alice Arensmeyer.

An electric clock presented by the class of February '31 to the school was accepted on behalf of the school by Marvin Collins, president of the student body. The clock will be placed in the library room. Gifts were also presented by the class to Miss Genevieve Dalbow and David Hertzler, members of the faculty and class advisors, the presentation being made by Nelson Green.

A number of selections by the orchestra were thoroughly enjoyable, and "Auld Lang Syne," sung by the graduates, was the final number of the evening.

ROBERT MORRIS HELPED WAR WITH HIS OWN MONEY

Robert Morris, financier of the American Revolution and intimate friend of George Washington, Alexander Hamilton, John Hancock and other leaders in early American history, was one of the most brilliant romantic figures in the War of Independence.

This patriot, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, helped to keep the Continental Army in the field out of his own purse and by pledging his private credit. According to a statement just made public by the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, it was through requisitions on the States, loans from France, and in a large measure through his own money advanced for the purpose, that the means was furnished to transfer Washington's army from Dobb's Ferry, New York, to Yorktown, Virginia, in 1781.

Robert Morris was the only man in the history of the Revolution who bore the title of "Superintendent of Finance." Born in Liverpool, England, January 31, 1734, he emigrated to America at the age of fourteen to join his father at Oxford, Maryland. The elder Morris was the agent of a large firm of tobacco merchants, Foster Cunliffe and Sons, of Liverpool. He was accidentally killed three years later, leaving Robert an orphan at the age of seventeen. Before his father's death, young Morris went to work in the mercantile house which two Englishmen, Charles and Thomas Willing, had established in Philadelphia in 1726. He was put to work in the counting room and soon exhibited an adaptability for business which won the favorable attention of his employers, and resulted in his becoming a member of the firm in 1754.

Morris first appeared active in public affairs in connection with the resistance to the Stamp Act. He signed the non-importation agreement in 1765, and was on a committee of citizens to force John Hughes, collector of the stamp tax, to desist from the administration of his office in October of that year. A year later, in 1766, Morris was made warden of the Port of Philadelphia.

When the Revolution began, he was forty-one years old. He took part in all of the great enterprises of the United States which were not military, and even in those his opinion was considered with profound respect.

He was vice-president of the Pennsylvania Committee of Safety, during 1775 and 1776, and a member of the Continental Congress from 1775 and 1776, and a member of the Continental Congress from 1775 to 1778. He retired from Congress in 1778 but was at once sent to the State Legislature serving from 1778 to 1781. His greatest public service was the financing of the War of Independence. As chairman of various committees, he was in close touch with the financial operations of Congress; and 1781 he was chosen by Congress to be Superintendent of Finance. With the able cooperation of his assistant, Gouverneur Morris, (who was in no way related to him) he filled this position with great efficiency during the trying years of 1781 to 1784. For the same period he was also Agent of Marine and hence head of the infant Navy Department.

There are times in the experience of every army when money is absolutely necessary to facilitate a military movement, and although General Washington relied upon the enthusiasm and patriotic ardor of his troops to a large extent than any other great commander the world has ever seen, he found the military chest all but empty at Trenton in 1776. When a rider came in from the Commander-in-Chief's camp asking for a large sum of money which was required for immediate use, Morris was confronted with the task of his life.

Washington had crossed the Delaware a second time with that unflinching courage that served him so well in the darkest hours. He prevailed upon the troops who had not received any pay for some time to remain six weeks longer, on the promise of a bounty of ten dollars for each soldier. Washington wrote to Morris for the money to make his promise good, and the next day $50,000 was sent to the commander-in-chief. This money, it is said, Morris personally borrowed from wealthy Quakers of Philadelphia, many of whom were his most intimate friends.

When the Federal Government was formed in 1789, Morris was offered the secretaryship of the Treasury, but this he declined and urged the appointment of Alexander Hamilton instead. As United States Senator, he supported the Federal policies and gave Hamilton considerable assistance in carrying out his financial plans.

During this time he gradually disposed of his mercantile and banking interests and engaged extensively in land speculation. At one time or another, he owned, wholly or in part, nearly the entire western half of New York State, two million acres in Georgia, and about one million acres in Pennsylvania, Virginia and South Carolina.

The slow development of this property, the failure of the London bank in which he had funds invested, and other unfortunate investments finally drove him into bankruptcy, and he was confined in a debtor's prison for more than three years. At that time the imprisonment of debtors was a common practice. When, in 1800, Congress passed an act by which, on the petition of his creditors a man could be adjudicated a bankrupt and thereupon released from prison, Morris was released, after much formality and delay. He gained his freedom on August 26, 1801, when proof was brought into court of unpaid debts amounting to about three million dollars. He became a not very cheerful pensioner upon his family and his friends, a humiliated and broken man.

He spent the summer of 1802 at Morrisania, with Gouverneur Morris who was now a United States Senator from New York. "He came to me, lean, low spirited, and as poor as a commission of bankruptcy can make a man whose effects will, it is said, not pay a shilling on the pound," Gouverneur wrote to a friend. "Instead, the assignees will not take the trouble of looking after them. I sent him home fat, sleek, in good spirits and possessed of the means of living comfortably for the rest of his days."

State News of General Interest

HAZLETON, Feb. 6.—With 94 cars hoisted during an 8-hour working period, production records at the Silver Brook colliery here were broken recently. The previous record had been 69 cars in an 8-hour period.

WELLSBORO, Feb. 6.—High point of interest in Tioga county since the biggest natural gas well east of the Mississippi was brought in early last fall, Farmington township now shares honors with Lawrence township where a second gusher has been struck on the farm owned by the Farr family.
Though the flow at the second well so far has averaged but 500,000 cubic feet, drillers who worked on the shaft believe the flow will increase and possibly exceed that of the first well brought in.

The Farmington township well came in with a roar that was heard over the countryside for miles, but the Lawrence township well, in the parlance of the work-crew, "sneaked in." The driller on the second project had been working for a week, expecting to find the Oriskany strata and finally fell asleep one afternoon. He was awakened by a strong odor of gas, clamped a gauge on his drill and thrilled to a reading of a 100,000 cubic foot flow. The drill was sunk a few more feet, to make sure it had not struck a pocket in the gas-bearing strata, and the flow increased as the drill bit down.

When the drill was hauled out, the well was flowing at the rate of half a million cubic feet of gas.

Heavy casing has been installed at the well to regulate the flow of gas and prevent a repetition of the experience encountered at the discovery well, when concrete "plugging" had to be resorted to because of the tremendous flow.

GREENSBURG, Feb. 6.—What is believed to be a rare relic of the travels of Daniel Boone through Pennsylvania has come to light here in the discovery, by Robert Maxwell, of Youngwood, of a piece of carved wood, bearing Boone's name and an inscription.

The find was made by Maxwell and his two sons, as they were walking over the old Maxwell farm, near the Harrold settlement where Fort Allen once stood. Maxwell turned over what appeared to be a piece of weather-beaten wood. On closer examination, he discovered the inscription: "Daniel Boone."

Below this appeared the legend: "1765. Going to Virginia to settle."

And to the left of the inscription was carved a "C."

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—The next time Mrs. J. W. Neilson accepts a check, she will probably see to it the check is signed with her own ink.

Mrs. Neilson advertised a fur coat for sale. A man and woman called at her home, looked at the coat, agreed to a purchase price of $65. They wrote and signed a check for that amount and left, bearing the garment.

A few hours later, Mrs. Neilson looked at the check, found the writing had disappeared.

And she cannot recall the name given by the couple.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 6.—This business of being a governor, Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's chief executive, will affirm is apt to make one a marked man. But it has its compensations in encounters with persons unmindful of his position.

At a dinner which the Governor attended here, he related two such experiences.

"I went into a local bookshop," said he, "and looked over the books on display while the clerk waited on other customers. Finally, he came toward me, looked me over and said:

"Well, Dad, what can I do for you?"

During the primary campaign, the Governor also related, he was on a train, conversing with a friend when an acquaintance of the latter approached.

The friend introduced the stranger. Explained his campaign position and strolled away. The stranger, Governor Pinchot said, conversed with him at length, asked as to his campaign platform, wished him success and said he was glad to meet the candidate.

Then, with a hearty handshake as he prepared to leave, he asked: "By the way, what is your name?"

"I didn't catch it,"

Hockey's "King" and "Lion"

By HARDIN BURNLEY

TWO of the great personalities in hockey were sold this season—King Clancy going from the Ottawa Senators to the Toronto Maple Leafs for a reputed $35,000 and two players; and Lionel Conacher, on his own request, was sold by the New York Americans to the Montreal Maroons for an unannounced amount. Both had been fixtures for several seasons with the teams which sold them. The "King" was the chief valuable article in a straight business deal. Conacher, wanted to leave the Yankees when he was displaced as their manager by Eddie Gerard.

While professional hockey is a rip-tearing, hard-boiled sport devoid almost wholly of surface sentimentality, some tears were shed and voices choked huskily when his

Ottawa teammates said farewell to the ol' "King." Clancy's pal, Alex Connell, had played with him almost since the time they first wore skates; they'd roomed together for years on the road. Alex vividly recalls the "King's" believe-it-or-not feat in Clancy's first year as a pro when he played all of the six positions on the Ottawa team in a Stanley Cup match with the Edmonton Eskimos!

The "King" started at right defense, was moved to left, and faced off when the regular center was banished; later, the wings sought relief and Clancy went in for each; finally subbing for the goalie when the latter was "boxed" for a foul.

Of all hockey's greats, Clancy probably is the most popular among the players because of his radiant disposition. He's that most rare of combinations—a fierce fighter and a pleasant sportsman perfectly blended.

The dashing "Lion," who fairly leaped from the Yankees to the Maroons, was New York's best all-around hockeyite since coming from Pittsburgh in a 1926 deal. Last season, Conacher managed the Yanks. They got off to a poor start, developed a fine offense, but were too far behind to get into the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Bill Dwyer, owner of the Yankees, has been yearning in vain for a championship team for five years. So he decided to replace Conacher with Gerard. At this writing, the standings indicate that Dwyer might as well start building title hopes for 1932.
